

Judge orders district to pay in discrimination suit

By Dave Gosnell
Staff writer

EAST ST. LOUIS — A federal judge has ruled that District 9 violated federal age discrimination laws when it reclassified two employees from administrators to teachers.

Chief Judge for the U.S. District Court in East St. Louis, James Foreman ruled on Aug. 22 that the district discriminated when it reclassified former principals Fred Noeth and Calvin Bartels to teaching jobs after many district schools were closed in 1983.

THE ACTION orders the district to give the two "compensatory damages for loss of income because of the reclassification."

Noeth and Bartels retired at the end of the 1982-83 school term after being reclassified as teachers. Noeth was principal of Logan Grade School and Bartels was principal of Prather Junior High School when they were reclassified by the Board of Education. Logan was being closed and Prather was being converted to an elementary school.

Though Noeth and Bartels had informed the board they were planning to retire in the future, Foreman said the board should not have reclassified the two based on that information.

"NOTIFICATION of an intent to retire is so inextricably linked with age... that it cannot be viewed as a single factor. An employee could always revoke his decision to retire."

"The court finds that the defendant (District 9) violated (federal discrimination laws) when it reclassified Bartels and Noeth from administrators to teachers because they intended to retire a year later," Foreman's order read.

Foreman said that, based on evidence, Bartels' and Noeth's intention to retire was the "determining factor" in the district's decision to reclassify.

FOREMAN CITED a November 1983 affidavit by then-superintendent B.J. Davis to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in St. Louis.

Davis told an EEOC investigator the two were reclassified because they were planning to retire after the 1983-84 school year. They then moved up their retirements to the end of the 1982-83 year.

The EEOC took the case on Bartels' and Noeth's behalf after the two filed a discrimination charge with the commission in June 1983.

AFTER REVIEWING their charges, the commission filed suit against the district in 1984 alleging the district violated the federal Age Discrimination Employment Act of 1967.

Foreman called "inconsistent" testimony given by District 9 personnel director Terry Salem and former assistant superintendent Frank Kraus.

Salem and Kraus testified they had made the initial reclassification recommendation to Davis. They said Noeth and Bartels were adequate administrators but had ranked lower than some of the others in a ranking of a group of administrators.

THE EEOC sought damages, not only for the difference in wages between the principal positions and the teaching positions, but for a year's wages they would have received had they remained administrators.

The commission based the proposed damages on a provision of the discrimination law that would have allowed the two to receive "double damages" if the actions of the district were "willful."

The EEOC claimed the district "willfully engaged in unlawful employment practices... by demoting Calvin Bartels and Fred Noeth and forcing them to retire at an earlier date than they had planned."

AN ATTORNEY for the district in the case, Harold Baker, filed court papers denying that charge.

Baker said the retirements "were voluntary on their part."

Foreman ruled the actions of the district were not willful. He said Bartels and Noeth should have accepted the teaching positions to "mitigate" the age discrimination damages.

Noeth and Bartels claimed that being reclassified as a teacher from a principal would have been viewed publicly as a demotion and that it would have been very difficult for them to return to the classroom after spending many years as administrators.

IN CLOSING a number of schools simultaneously, the district found itself with fewer principal jobs than it had principals.

Though he sympathized with Bartels' and Noeth's "feelings of humiliation," Foreman said that, because of the district's bad financial situation at the time of the school closings, the public would have understood that the reassignments were not because of bad job performances.

"It would not have been unreasonable for Bartels and Noeth to return to the classroom... The district was facing hard economic decisions."

THE LOGICAL inference, the public would have drawn would have been that Bartels and Noeth were reclassified because their schools were closed," read Foreman's order.

Foreman ordered the district to pay Bartels $6,433, the difference between wages he would have earned as an administrator or as a teacher, and additional pension contributions and life insurance benefits. Noeth is to receive $4,718.

Foreman also ordered the Illinois Teachers' Retirement System to raise Noeth's and Bartels' pensions accordingly. The retirement system had been joined as a party to the case.

BARTELS BECAME an employee of the school system in 1964, when he was assigned as a Prather teacher. He was appointed assistant principal of Coolidge Junior High in 1968, and became Prather principal in 1972.

Noeth joined the district as a Mitchell Grade School teacher in 1963, became Washington Grade School principal in 1967, and then became the Logan principal when Washington was closed in 1979.

Telethon more than a TV show

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

PONTIAC BEACH — Labor Day holds many traditions; end-of-summer outings, family barbecues and watching the annual Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Association telethon.

For many who watch, the telethon is a chance to see and hear some of the best performers in the world of entertainment.

FOR THE ONES afflicted with

Sunday focus muscular dystrophy, the telethon takes on a different meaning.

Pontiac Beach resident Bobby Morgan was stricken with the disease in 1940 when he was 9 years old. It wasn't diagnosed until 1954, said Morgan, now 55.

"I just knew I was underweight and couldn't run," he said.

THOUGH CONFINED to a wheelchair, Morgan doesn't let the disease stop him from performing his duty as a dispatcher for the Pontiac Beach Police Department.

"It's never bothered me as far as doing work," Morgan said, "something that happened and no one knows why."

His family life has not been hindered by muscular dystrophy, either, he said. Morgan and his wife, Flora, will have been married 33 years in October. They have three healthy children and six healthy grandchildren with one more grandchild expected, he said.

THOUGH MUSCULAR dystrophy is a deadly disease, Morgan said he doesn't worry.

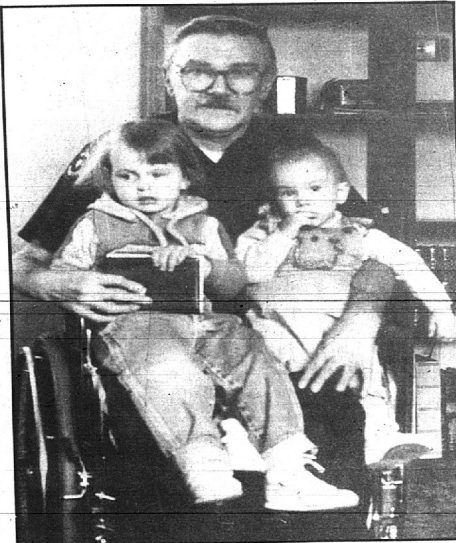

"Why worry about it, 'cause life's going to go on," he said. "You just live one day at a time."

A faithful watcher of the telethon every year, Morgan said he has a high esteem for Lewis.

"THERE'S SOME reason why he (Lewis) does it and it's nobody's business why," Morgan said. "He's doing a service for mankind."

THOUGH $33 million was raised in last year's telethon, Morgan said, people do not realize the expenses incurred by muscular dystrophy patients.

"A lot of people watch it and say, 'Look at all that money,'" Morgan said, "but they don't think about the tests."

PROUDLY DISPLAYING his uniform, Bobby Morgan, center, doesn't let muscular dystrophy stand the way of his job as a dispatcher for the Pontiac Beach Police Department. Seated on his lap are his granddaughters, Linden, left, and Stacey, right. Morgan will be watching the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Association Telethon this holiday weekend. Morgan said he can relate to the children shown on television who have been stricken with the disease.

"WHEN I SEE these kids, I know what they're going through," he said. "People don't want sympathy, but they want someone who cares."

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the telethon. Lewis started it in 1966 on one television station WNEW in New York. The first telethon raised $1,002,114 and was the first fund-raising event of its kind to raise over $1 million.

Over 200 television stations will join in Lewis' "Love Network" this Union members still working

GRANITE CITY — A member of Mailers Union Local 3 is striking outside the Press-Record/Journal building because his work days were reduced from five to three.

He is not employed by the newspaper company. He is employed by another business within the building, Madison Printing Co.

The 11 members of St. Louis Typographical Union Local 8, and all local members of Pressmen Local 6, continue to produce the newspaper. Local 6 members, like the one striking mailer, work for Madison Printing. Typographical Union members are employed by another business within the building.

One of the union members still working in the building, and who asked not to be identified, said he is concerned about calls for a boycott of the Press-Record/Journal, which is owned by the third company in the building, East Side Publications.

If the papers are financially hurt, some of the remaining union members could be laid off, he said.

"We're honoring a contract," he said. "We're three different companies within this building."

The Mailers haven't had a contract in more than three years, which is more than a year before present management became involved.

The publisher of East Side Publications, Rick Jarvis, said his newspapers should not be included in a boycott of Madison Printing Co.

"It is unfortunate that the Mailers are trying to include our newspapers in their differences with Madison Printing, but people should realize we do not control what occurs between the union and that company," Jarvis said.

Principal hirings continue, board appoints Buehler to Grigsby job

GRANITE CITY — Some birthday presents are wrapped in brightly colored paper with tied bows.

But to Vic Buehler, his present came in the form of an appointment to be the next principal of Grigsby Jr. High School.

BUEHLER, who was assistant principal at Granite City High School, was 42 years old on Aug. 29.

He was the unanimous choice for Grigsby principal of the Board of Education Tuesday evening.

His former boss at the high school, now District 9 superintendent Gilbert Walmesley, recommended Buehler for the Grigsby position.

SEVEN DISTRICT 9 employees applied for the position — three administrators and four teachers — including his co-worker at the high school, assistant principal Pat Schumacher.

Most of the group had been interviewed previously this year. Frohardt Principal Don Kopp was interviewed Tuesday night.

"He (Buehler) had more administrative and teaching experience and a breadth of other experience. He also had a great deal of

Raises for department heads

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — Pay raises for the city's department heads were approved by the Granite City Council Tuesday night.

Receiving a 4 percent retroactive pay for fiscal 1986 and a 4 percent raise for fiscal 1987 are City Director Dick Portell, Police Chief Bill Harris, Fire Chief Joe Holder, Assistant Fire Chief Walmer Schmidtke and Acting City Engineer Edward Schulze.

FOUR PERCENT raises for fiscal 1987 were granted to City Attorneys Mark Goldenberg, Charlie Douglas and John Hopkins, Building Inspector John Jakich, City Inspector Erv DeRousse and City Hall custodian Francis Przygoda.

Superintendent of the Sewage Treatment Plant Terry McMillan will receive a 4 percent retroactive pay for fiscal 1986. The council also raised his salary to $38,344 for fiscal 1987.

The aldermen voted to raise Comptroller Joe Miklovic's salary to $40,000 a year.

RETROACTIVE pay is based on the date the person was appointed to his position, said 5th Ward Alderman Jake Varadani, finance committee chairman.

The aldermen also voted to give former department heads a 4 percent retroactive pay for the one week they were employed during fiscal 1986 under former Mayor Paul Schuler's administration.

The fiscal 1986 budget went into effect May 1, 1985. However, Mayor Von De Gruse did not take office until May 1.

Receiving this pay are former City Attorneys John Papa, Irvin Slate, Bob Hennessey and Casper Nighossian, former Building Inspector Mike DeRuntz, former City Inspector Emerald Dawes, retired Fire Chief Don Parente, retired Police Chief Ron Veizer and former Superintendent of the Sewage Treatment Plant Terry McMillan.

Police officers seek back incentive pay

By Donna Kimbro

MADISON — Police officers are five pay that goes back to 1973 and could cost the city an estimated $60,000.

William Papa, a current officer with the police department, and Gary Marsala, now with the Madison County Sheriff's Department, each submitted a letter of request to the council for back pay.

Mayor John Bellecoff said at an earlier council meeting, when a petition for payment was received, that he thinks the men are entitled to the incentive; however, the council may have to go to taxpayers to pay this amount, he said.

The mayor at that time appointed a committee headed by Alderman William Gushel to research records back to 1974 on the subject of incentive pay. The committee was to meet with the mayor and city attorney to discuss the problem.

Papa said he received an associate degree in applied science, law enforcement on May 24, 1974, and should have received the sum of $128 per month beginning June 1974. Instead, he was paid $300 per year for this. He requested back pay in the amount of $13,596 for 1974 through 1983-86.

Marsala said he was hired as a patrolman for the city on Aug. 15, 1974. He requested back pay in the amount of $13,596 for 1974 through 1983-86.

A $223,196 tax levy for 1961, up $32,740 from a year ago, was adopted by the Venice City Council on Friday. The levy is based on a 1961-62 city budget of $365,796. The new budget adopted July 7, represents an increase of only $1,840 over last year's budget.

College attains quality at low cost

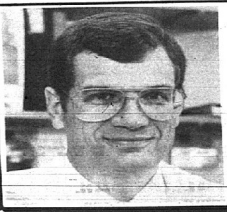

The one-year Belleville Area College faculty contract just ratified is actually 1 percent less in cost than the tentative contract rejected by trustees last month.

The new contract between the BAC Board of Trustees and 118 full-time faculty members provides for an average step increase of $1,961. The tentative accord, rejected by the board in a 4-3 vote last month, would have resulted in an increased cost of $5,355 per faculty member when adding costs of salary, fringe benefits and proposed language changes.

The first accord, ratified by teachers but rejected by the trustees in June and July, provided a $1,400 salary hike, $955 more in fringe benefits and proposed language changes equaling $3,000 per faculty member.

In my opinion, language in that rejected two-year proposal would have jeopardized a key growth area in our curriculum, television courses.

Additionally, approximately one-third of the faculty would have been able to eliminate all scheduled office hours. This loss of service to students was not acceptable academically and would have cost more than $200,000 annually, based on current wage rates.

The new contract is for one year — providing more flexibility to the Board of Trustees during a period of uncertainty in enrollment trends.

A second year to the contract would make it impossible to adjust workloads and salaries to fit the district's financial needs.

—BAC teachers are excellent and they deserved a salary increase this year. In two of the last three years, including 1985-86, they had not had any pay increases.

For the last three years the increase in faculty contracts at BAC had been the lowest in the state of Illinois. During that same time frame, this faculty had made a number of productivity concessions to the district.

Because of the faculty's willingness to forego pay hikes in the last few years, the college was able to build up a fund balance of more than $2 million. During the same time, the college attained the maximum 10-year accreditation.

We also have some good financial news.

This year, the trustees have decided to tap that fund balance for a variety of expenditures. The fund balance may be exhausted in this fiscal year due to those expenditures.

Enrollment is going extremely well for the fall semester. The extent of deficit spending will be softened by increased student tuition and state aid if registration continues on its current path.

BAC's ability to do more with less is clearly documented in records on public file here and with the Illinois Community College Board.

When it comes to state standards for per-student costs, BAC is the most cost-effective in the state's community college system.

Plea bargaining seems too easy

Getting off seems too easy for criminals prosecuted by the Madison County State's Attorney's Office.

At the end of July, not counting the many 1986 cases dismissed at the request of Dick Allen's prosecutors, 53 felony cases involving Granite City crimes and residents had gone through the court's process to the sentencing stage.

The record shows that, after plea bargaining, 15 convicted felons received more than a year in prison. These felons, these repeat offenders, were sentenced for such things as sex crimes and murder.

Of course, some of those same felons will be paroled before their sentences are up. Robert Carroll, for example, has been convicted for clubbing Ticky Sanders to death with a weightlifting bar. Earlier this month, Carroll received seven years and could be out in half that time.

Nine of the felony convictions by the end of July resulted in sentences of probation and less than a year of jail.

Of the 53 felony case sentences between January and July, 26 convicted felons received probation. They were put back on the streets. Three received sentences of less than a year, with no probation.

One of those who received probation only was Joyce Bauer, of Granite City, who was sentenced to a whopping two years of probation after being charged with attempting to kill her husband by putting arsenic-laden ant poison in his drinks. The charge of attempted murder was bargained down to aggravated battery.

During his campaign to become state's attorney, Allen said, "Criminal prosecution is never the work of the state's attorney's office alone. Every legitimate conviction is based on the hard work of the police department. I have been fortunate to enjoy a good working relationship with many highly-skilled officers and detectives in the area."

Based on the hard work and danger often involved in making an arrest, one wonders if a good relationship with police is still in Allen's mind. About half of the mentioned felony convictions resulted in little or no time in jail for the felons, clearly deserved better than the plea bargaining and light sentences being handed to criminals via the state's attorney.

Following is an abbreviated breakdown of the 53 felonies and sentences:

- Three counts of theft, less than $300 value, 90 days;
- Theft, more than $300, six months;
- Possession, 15 pounds of cannabis, 15 weekends in jail, fine, two years probation;
- Attempted residential burglary, 57 days, two years probation;
- Aggravated criminal sexual assault, eight years;
- Battery, theft of less than $300, fine and month of court supervision;
- Rape, 14 years;
- Aggravated battery, unlawful drug possession, 5½ years;
- Aggravated battery, four years;
- Theft, less than $300, 30 days, one year of probation;
- A store robbery, six years;
- Forgery, probation;
- Retail theft, probation;
- Theft, more than $300, probation;
- Fondling 12-year-old girl, probation;
- Unlawful possession, cannabis, probation;
- Theft, year probation and fine;
- Burglary, 18 months probation;
- Burglary, 18 months probation;
- Residential burglary, 10 years;
- Theft, less than $300, 90 days;
- Battery, theft of more than $300, two weekends jail, 17 days probation, public service work;
- Unlawful delivery, cannabis, two years probation;
- Theft, year probation;
- Burglary, three years probation;
- Theft, more than $300, two years probation;
- Unlawful delivery, cannabis, probation and fine;
- Possession, cannabis, two years probation;
- Deceptive practices, three years probation;
- Aggravated battery, two years probation;
- Battery, 10 days in jail and year probation;
- Armed violence for shooting a man three times, 14 years;
- Petty theft, year probation;
- Burglary, 30 days in jail, two years probation;
- Sexual abuse, six years;
- Sexual assault, home invasion, kidnapping, 30 years;
- Home invasion, theft of more than $300, 30 years;
- Theft, more than $300, five years;
- Forgery, four years;
- Theft, more than $300, two years probation;
- Aggravated criminal sexual assault and aggravated criminal sexual abuse, three years prison and eight years probation;
- Illegal use of a weapon, six months in jail and two years probation;
- Theft, more than $300, year probation;
- Theft, less than $300, two years in prison;
- Theft, less than $300, year probation and seven days in jail;
- Burglary, public service and two years probation;
- Theft of less than $300, year probation;
- Deceptive practice, two years probation;
- Aggravated battery, 18 months probation;
- Aggravated sexual abuse, 2½ years probation;
- Delivery of cannabis, six months in jail and two years probation;
- Burglary, 18 months probation; and
- Murder, 25 years.

Tough talk about dealing with criminals should be followed by action.

Fence needed on Nameoki Road

Another school year has begun and nothing yet has been done to avoid the almost inevitable accidents involving students being struck by vehicles around the Granite City High School campus.

There has been little action taken on one of the suggestions — thought by some to be a solution to the problem — erecting a fence along Nameoki Road. But if it's done with the intention of totally eliminating the problem, it won't work.

The old adage, "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make it drink," applies to the debate on this method of stopping students from being hit by cars.

The idea is to place a fence on the raised, concrete median that divides Nameoki Road between Jill Avenue and the intersection with Madison Avenue.

This stretch of Nameoki Road is the area where two accidents involving students being struck by vehicles occurred last school year.

The fence would not put an end to students being hit by motorists in the junior-high-senior high area, but the fence would ensure that students and other pedestrians would not cross the busy thoroughfare in the middle of the block.

If it would force them to go to either end of the fence, the south end where there is no crosswalk, or preferably the north end at Jill Avenue, where there are traffic lights and a crosswalk.

But you can't make the students go to the Jill Avenue end and cross at the crosswalk. Some would walk around the south end, taking their lives in their own hands and daring drivers to stop for them.

Even if the students go to the Jill Avenue crosswalk, which we hope they would, there is no way to force them to push the button that activates the traffic and crosswalk lights so they could cross safely.

And even if they do push the button, they have to wait for the traffic light cycle, which most students are not patient enough to do.

The intersection installed by the Illinois Department of Transportation several years ago does not provide a long-enough walk cycle for the huge groups of students crossing the busy street before and after school.

The traffic lights have undoubtedly ly helped motorists who use Jill Avenue, but no thought was given to providing a functional crosswalk for students at Cottage Junior High and GCHS.

Pedestrian traffic is just as important, especially at this location near two large schools, and should be given an equal opportunity to cross the busy, main artery through our community.

There will be undoubtedly, those who will cross at the south end of the fence, because it's closer or more convenient, and there will be a few even more foolish who will try to scale the fence, regardless of its height, to cross the four-lane road.

A fence would, of course, stop the majority of those who cross in the middle of the block — illegally, by the way — and should have an immediate impact on the number of students struck by cars.

Unfortunately, the fence along Nameoki Road only addresses one problem area where students from the schools cross daily.

A solution to the equally dangerous crosswalk in the 3000 block of Madison Avenue, a crosswalk made more visible last school year, has yet to be found.

After observing both areas, one must come to the conclusion that the students must take some of the responsibility when crossing the busy streets.

The many letters and comments received here at the Press-Record/Journal are witness to the fact the community cares about the students and the problem of crossing the busy thoroughfares.

Most people only remember their own frustrations in the area in question, but all of us must look at the problem as a whole.

We cannot say, "Let the kids get hit; then they will learn." Or, "Think of the litter that will collect along the fence." Or, "Have the police enforce the jaywalking laws to the letter."

We all know there aren't enough police to assign several to the area just to issue jaywalking tickets that the parents are inevitably going to pay. And letting the kids get hit so they learn the hard way is not a logical answer to this very serious problem.

Maybe having a policeman at the Jill Avenue crosswalk, as in previous years, might be the best solution.

We cannot stop every accident or close call that's bound to occur when four lanes of relatively fast traffic are being crossed by hundreds of young people on a daily basis, but we can make it safer for them by driving more defensively and keeping more aware of the students.

Coverage of murder results in recognition

Our coverage of the Hoffman murder case was the most thorough that any newspaper or other media brought to Quad-City Area residents.

Several front-page stories and a special section kept readers informed during the murder investigation and subsequent arrest.

Our concerns were the same as yours — who did it, why, how, because when such cases arise the public wants to know and has a right to know just how safe they can expect to be in their own homes when a murderer is on the loose.

We tried to answer those questions through official sources, and when they couldn't or wouldn't help, we went to unofficial sources to get the rest of the story.

The long hours are worth it when the stories come rolling off the press and people call to thank us for a job well done.

Another thing that makes the extra effort worthwhile is when it's recognized by peers, as occurred last week at the second quarter meeting of the Press Association of Greater St. Louis.

For coverage of the Hoffman murders, the first-place award for news features went to the Press-Record/Journal, reporting team of Bill Bagby, Bill Milligan and Jack Ventimiglia.

Also at the meeting, a pat on the back was given to Patrick Foley for his award-winning photo of a victim being extricated from a car wreck. A veteran staff member, Foley's eye for accident-scene photography has provided our readers with on-the-spot coverage for more than 10 years.

We also took an award for a school board editorial.

The awards, as you've heard before, are nice to look at, but the best thrill will always be the one we get when someone calls up and says, "Hey, you know that article you did, it was really good. I just wanted you to know."

Secret tapes allowed at assessment trials

A judge has refused to suppress secretly recorded conversations as evidence against five defendants in an alleged assessment reduction kickback scheme.

Associate Judge Charles V. Romani Jr. filed an order Friday in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville denying motions by defendants James W. Barton, Merle Bassett, Gerald Bassett, Robert Quinn and Fred Finck that the tapes be suppressed.

The defendants are charged with participation in a scheme to exchange assessment reductions for contributions to a fund set up to help Barton pay for defending himself against earlier, unrelated criminal charges.

Trial of Finck, a former member of the County Board of Review, was set for this week. He is charged with one count each of obstructing justice, official misconduct, conspiracy to commit bribery and conspiracy to commit official misconduct.

Barton is a former Madison County supervisor of assessments; Gerald Bassett was an assistant to Barton; and Merle Bassett is a lawyer and Gerald Bassett's father. Their trial is set for Sept. 15. No date has been set for the trial of Quinn, who is a lawyer.

The defendants sought to suppress 15 recorded conversations of lawyer

Robert Carter with Barton and the two Bassetts. Carter was cooperating with investigators. The defense claimed the eavesdrops were illegal and thus the recordings could not be used as evidence.

The defendants contended that Circuit Judge John DeLaurenti's authorization to record three conversations in December 1983 was based on improperly obtained information and misrepresentations by the state.

They argued that later conversations were recorded under the federal eavesdropping law to sidestep requirements of the more restrictive Illinois law.

Romani ruled DeLaurenti's authorization of eavesdropping was proper. Romani said the defendants failed to meet the burden of providing illegality.

Although the federal eavesdropping would be improper under Illinois law — since it was not authorized by a judge — it met federal requirements, Romani said.

The judge said decisions in similar cases have held that evidence derived from eavesdropping under federal law should only be excluded when there is a showing that there was collusion between state and federal authorities to circumvent the state law. Romani said there was no evidence of such collusion.

Stop-smoking class to begin

U.S. Surgeon General's warning: Quitting smoking now greatly reduces serious risks to your health.

This and similar reminders can be found on every packet of cigarettes sold in the United States. Yet, millions of people continue to exist behind a smoke screen of ignorance, feeling trapped, unable to kick a habit which takes thousands of lives each year, according to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

SEMC provides a stop-smoking program to help these people who really want to stop smoking. Fresh Start, developed by the American Cancer Society, will begin on Wednesday, Oct. 8, and continue to meet every Wednesday evening, from 7 to 9, through Oct. 29.

Classes, which will be held in the 6-Doctors classroom at the medical center, are limited to 15 participants. Interested persons are being encouraged to register as early as possible. Cost for the course is $15 per person.

Classes are taught by Terry Johnson, an SEMC critical care registered nurse and pulmonary nurse clinician.

Topics include why people smoke, how the habit is reinforced, how to manage the first few days without cigarettes, how to master obstacles, and the physical changes to expect after quitting.

Council OKs $2.8 million tax levy

GRANITE CITY — A $2.8 million real estate tax levy for fiscal 1987 was approved by the Granite City Council Tuesday night.

The levy, which totals $2,845,862, is the same amount levied for fiscal 1986, said 5th Ward Alderman Jake Varadian, finance committee chairman.

"We're not asking for any more and we're not asking for any less," Varadian said.

Budgeted are the following, which total $9,566,980:

- General government: $1,905,895 (including a $685,208 library budget).
- Public safety: $4,658,990.
- Public works: $1,788,911.
- Health/welfare: $63,184.
- Capital improvement fund: $1,000,000.

Other items: $150,000. Revenue from sales, income, utility and corporate replacement taxes is expected to be $6,721,118. This figure subtracted from the $9,566,980 gives the total amount being levied.

Car dealer testifies Barton contributions were linked to tax cuts

An Alton car dealer who had sought a reduction in his 1983 property tax assessment testified Tuesday he was asked by Gerald Bassett to make a contribution to a legal defense fund for James W. Barton, then Madison County supervisor of assessments.

The dealer, William T. Roberts, testified as a prosecution witness during the second day of the trial of Fred Finck in Edwardsville on charges of obstructing justice, official misconduct, conspiracy to commit bribery and conspiracy to commit official misconduct.

Finck, 55, of Godfrey, is a former member of the county's Board of Review. Gerald Bassett was an assistant to Barton.

Barton was facing unrelated charges of bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery brought against him in 1982. He was convicted of those charges earlier this year.

Roberts testified that, in August 1982, he encountered Finck, who asked him how his business was doing. Roberts said he told Finck the automobile business was "tough" and Finck suggested he might appeal his property assessment on the basis of hardship.

Roberts said he discussed the matter with his lawyer, Robert Carter, who later told him it was too late to appeal the 1982 assessment.

In 1983, Roberts said, he encountered Gerald Bassett, who suggested he might seek an assessment reduction. Roberts said he again asked Carter to seek a reduced assessment.

Bassett later came to his office and asked that he contribute to the defense fund. Roberts said he told Carter of the meeting and that he and Carter later met with someone from the state's attorney's office.

Under cross-examination by Finck's attorney, William F. Sherwood, Roberts testified that Finck never solicited any money from him. Carter, called as a witness by Special Prosecutor Bruce D. Locher, testified that Gerald Bassett came to his office on Oct. 5, 1983, and told him the assessment of Roberts' business would be reduced by one-third, and that a $500 to $600 contribution to Barton's defense fund would be appreciated.

Carter said he called Bassett on Nov. 22, 1983, and told him Roberts was "balking" at making the contribution. Carter said Bassett told him, "out of the blue," that the assessment of Roberts' Godfrey residence would be cut by $10,000, saving him $500 or $600.

According to Carter, Bassett said the savings would allow Roberts to make a contribution to the defense fund.

Carter, who was cooperating with investigators, said he gave Bassett a $500 check for the defense fund on Dec. 9, 1983, and Bassett gave him an envelope containing two notices of assessment reductions.

In fact, the assessment of Roberts' dealership had been cut by about a third the year before and remained the same, Carter said. The assessment for 1983 was to have risen by about one-third, but did not, according to Carter.

Late Tuesday afternoon, two secretly recorded telephone conversations between Bassett and Carter were played in open court.

In the recordings played Tuesday, Carter told Bassett that Roberts had agreed to make a $500 contribution and Carter arranged to meet Bassett in East Alton to give him the check.

Both Roberts and Carter have previously said Roberts had not agreed to make a contribution. As part of Carter's cooperation with investigators, the check was written on an account of Carter's law firm and given to Bassett.

A Wood River car dealer, Edward A. Hamlin of Alhambra-Hamlin Chevrolet, testified that, in 1982, he asked lawyer Merle Bassett (Gerald Bassett's father) to seek a reduction of the 1982 assessment of his dealership.

Hamlin said he did not fill out an objection to his assessment and did not meet with any members of the Board of Review, but was later informed by Merle Bassett that his assessment was reduced. He said Bassett billed him $850 for legal services.

An employee of the supervisor of assessments office, Joy Ruebhausen, testified that she "whited out" reductions in assessments for some car dealers she had mistakenly entered in assessment books on Jan. 30, 1984.

Ruebhausen testified that, after a meeting that day regarding car dealers' assessments in Barton's office, she was given a list of figures for dealers' assessments.

She said she erroneously believed she was to enter a set of lower figures as the dealers' assessments. Ruebhausen said she began making the changes the same day, but Finck told her the changes should await receipt of profit-and-loss statements sought from the dealers. She said Finck told her to "white out" the changes she had made.

Under cross-examination, Ruebhausen said no one had told her to "white out" the changes to cover up illegal activity.

The obstructive justice charge against Finck alleges he directed that assessment records be "whited out."

Barton, the Bassetts and lawyer Robert Quinn are also charged in the case.

Trial of Barton and the Bassetts is set for Sept. 15. Quinn's trial date has not been set.

FIRE DAMAGES TRUCK, HOME
A fire caused $1,300 damage to a pickup truck and the home of Patrick Harper, 2488 Kilarney Drive. The fire apparently started in a trash pile, located in the bed of the truck, and spread to the cab. The heat from the blaze damaged siding on Harper's home. Cause of the fire is unknown.

ALCOHOL CHARGES FILED
Brian K. Brutto, 21, of Belleville was charged Aug. 24 with illegal transportation of beer and improper use of an auto registration. Officers stopped Brutto's car at 21st and Iowa streets. His passenger, Tony E. Bonn, 21, of Millstadt was charged with illegal possession of beer. Each was released on $50 cash bail.

$30,000 DAMAGE IN FIRE
A fire at the home of Bruce Burnett, 2239 Dewey Ave., did $30,000 damage Aug. 25. The fire started in the back of the home and spread to the attic and roof. Cause of the fire was a short-circuit in electrical wiring at the rear of the building.

BURGULARY WARRANT SERVED
John D. Hagen III, 17, of 3205 Rodger Ave. was served a warrant Aug. 27 by Granite City police alleging burglary. He was released on $2,002 cash bail.

HOME FIRE IS ATTRIBUTED TO SMOLDERING CIGARETTE
Madison County authorities are investigating a fire which occurred at 1:47 p.m. Aug. 26 at the home of Joyce Sloan, 1923 Fifth St., E. Madison. The blaze apparently started when a lit cigarette was left on a bed inside the house.

Sloan was not at home when the fire started. The extent of damage was not immediately estimated.

INFANT HURT IN MISHAP AT MARYVILLE AND 203
Lindzie Page, 1½, of 4605 Kirkpatrick Homes, was injured in a two-car collision at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 27, Illinois State Police said.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her mother, Kimberly, 27, eastbound on Maryville Road. It was alleged she disobeyed a spotlight at Illinois 203 and collided with a car driven by Kathy Humpert of St. Louis.

Page was charged with passing a traffic control signal and not having a child safety restraint in use.

FOUR TIRES FLATTENED
Bonnie Roomers of Alton said Aug. 26 someone flattened all four tires on her car which was parked at St. Gregory's Hall, 10 Colonial Drive.

RED PICKUP TRUCK STOLEN

YOUR STARS

VIRGO Aug. 23-Sept. 7- Emotional disturbances early in the week make it difficult for you to follow even well-made plans. Sept. 8-Sept. 22- An impulsive move as the week opens has far reaching effects. Lost causes lure you into high expenditures. LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct. 7- Give special attention to one who has aided you in the past. Don't kill the goose that lays the golden eggs! Oct. 8-Oct. 22- Close relatives cause your crucial hackles to rise. Do your best to maintain peace throughout the week. SCORPIO Oct. 23-Nov. 7- Superiors agree with your suggestions early on and act to implement them to your advantage by week's end. Nov. 8-Nov. 21- Consider your own goals well. This may be the last week during which changes can be made safely. SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 7- Matters of health must be allowed the time and attention they need. Don't be penny wise and pound foolish. Dec. 8-Dec. 21- Self confidence must hide behind humility this week. Otherwise, co-workers may be irritated. CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 6- Take care when dealing with domestic matters that you don't alienate family members through perfectionism. Jan. 7-Jan. 19- Social pleasures dominate this week. Aspects of your career come in for questioning by superiors. AQUARIUS Jan. 20-Feb. 3- Marital differences are solved with the aid of the young. Unexpected circumstances ease changes. Feb. 4-Feb. 18- Don't expect every discussion this week to end in agreement. Arguments develop in midweek. PISCES Feb. 19-March 5- Take advantage of any connection with authority figures. Share new knowledge and gain opportunity. March 6-March 20- An unpredictable partner causes more than a little concern along financial lines. End the week well. ARIES March 21-April 4- Combine a new project with a new method of operations and you should know real success by week's end. April 5-April 19- Pressure from superiors may make you too tense to perform up to par on employment scene this week. TAURUS April 20-May 5- There is little to lend excitement to this week. Perform routine chores with special attention, however. May 6-May 20- Add artistic touches to routine activities, especially on the home front. You can keep boredom at arm's length. GEMINI May 21-June 6- Property improvements of any size or nature prove a profitable investment by week's end. Don't be dissuaded. June 7-June 20- Test good intentions against good results. You may be expecting too much of yourself and others now. CANCER June 21-July 7- A pleasant, but not exciting, week makes for the kind of stability you strive for. Finances show improvement. July 8-July 22- If you've done the preparatory paper work, you should have little difficulty reaching new goals. LEO July 23-Aug. 7- Concentrate on daily necessities of life. Problems fade considerably when you act on them rather than worry about them. 8-Aug. 22- Family members are agreeable to you striking out in a new direction. Even so, don't jump the gun.

Drive organized to form new city

An effort has begun to incorporate an area west of Collinsville that includes the State Park Place and Mounds subdivisions.

Dissatisfaction with road maintenance and police protection are among the reasons for the effort, according to Tony White, owner of Mounds Market on Collinsville Road.

White is helping to organize the drive for incorporation. A preliminary meeting was held Aug. 26. Representatives of all seven area churches, the State Park Fire Department and some small businesses were invited to attend. An attorney also attended.

The area involved is bounded on the north by I-55/70, on the south by the Chessie railroad tracks, on the east by Canteen Creek and on the west by Cahokia Mounds Historic Site. The historic site would not be included because it would not provide any money, White said.

A meeting to present the proposal to the citizens of the area is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 15. Location of the meeting will be announced later.

White said reaction to the proposal was positive.

"Everyone who attended is a property owner," said White, who lives on Art Street. "They know property taxes are as high as possible and road conditions are as low as they possibly could be."

Residents of the Canteen

Township portion of the area have complained for years that the roads were not repaired properly after severe rains.

Canteen Township is in St. Clair County. The northern part of the area is in Nameoki Township in Madison County. The St. Clair and Madison County sheriff's departments have jurisdiction, but most residents now call the Illinois State Police, White said.

Having its own police department would enable the area to control troublemakers, White said.

The area would also be able to benefit from taxes paid by its businesses, he said.

A panel of 50 people will be formed to work on the annexation, he said. A non-profit corporation must also be formed, White said.

An effort to incorporate State Park Place under the name Ponderosa fizzled in 1977.

A name for the proposed new municipality is "of all things, the least important now," White said.

However, he favors Mounds. "State Park has a bad reputation," he said.

White said construction of I-235 "would logically raise the value of property in the area, but if we don't get organized it will fall apart."

State Park at several times in the past had unpaid "auxiliary" police units.

Houston would speed state fund processing

Mike Houston, mayor of Springfield, and Republican candidate for state treasurer, this week outlined a program to use state-of-the-art financial practices and technologies to "cut millions of dollars to the state treasury without increasing taxes."

"Since announcing my candidacy last October, I have spent hundreds of hours examining the office of the state treasurer, what it does and what it fails to accomplish, and comparing it to other public and private treasury operations," Houston said.

"What I have seen is not an altogether pretty sight. The office is an untapped resource and unrealized opportunity for the people of Illinois."

Houston proposed electronic fund transfers, lock-box operations and optical scanning equipment to reduce the period between the time a check is received by the state and when the money is actually deposited.

"The elimination of this unnecessary float will generate millions of dollars in interest on deposits," Houston said. "Based on figures from the fiscal 1985 treasurer's report, Illinois can earn an additional $2.5 million annually for each day of float that is eliminated. It's shockingly simple."

"In an age of high technology and sophisticated cash management techniques, Illinois has less than a state-of-the-art system," Houston said. "The revenue collection process used during my opponent's administration has left Illinois decades behind other states, and cost the people millions of dollars."

Houston said the City of Springfield cost-justified the use of such modern procedures.

"You have only to look at your own cancelled checks to see that insurance companies, utility companies and credit card companies know the cost-effectiveness of using these procedures," Houston said.

"These businesses don't wait two or three weeks to deposit your check."

"In Springfield, our city-owned utility has completed an analysis and cost-justified the purchase of automated remittance processing equipment. This cost-benefit analysis process cannot be completed overnight. However, the process must and can be completed with the commitment of a full-time state treasurer."

1977, and graduates from Belleville Area College with an associate degree in administration of justice law enforcement in May 1980. He had been receiving the school ed necessary pay at the reduced rate from that period, and asks that the full amount be paid now.

Patrolman Donald Bridick submitted a request for $1,536 to the council at its Aug. 12 meeting for additional incentive pay which he said was due for the 1983-84 year.

Ordinance 657 establishing higher education incentive pay for police officers was passed by the council on Jan. 18. The ordinance re- closure of the entire lodge, Witte said it will be 18 to 24 months before all facets of the massive renovation project are completed. The lodge is a premier attraction of the 7,200-acre state park, which is visited by many Quad-City Area residents.

Renovation work on the lodge itself is expected to be completed in 1987. A new conference center addition with adjoining rooms—a motel and pool wing addition—will take additional construction time.

Witte also said seven cabins, containing 22 guest rooms, behind the main lodge have already been renovated as part of the overall renovation project.

Witte said Wallace could utilize the cabins during the construction program.

Witte said it is clear that people who utilize the lodge plan on eating there.

Asking if Wallace will receive any compensation during the period the lodge is closed, Witte said, "There's been no discussion on that subject."

The existing lodge will be virtually gutted and everything but the historically significant logs and limestone will be removed, Witte said.

On the second floor of the lodge, the current 18 rooms will be remodeled into 12 new rooms with individual bathrooms. Currently, bathrooms are shared and frequently only every other room is rented in order to provide occupants with an individual bathroom, Witte said.

Lodge to close for 12 months

A $6.5 million renovation and expansion of Pere Marquette State Park Lodge will close the lodge Dec. 1 for a year.

Illinois Department of Conservation (DOC) Director Michael Witte made the announcement in Alton Aug. 16.

Witte's announcement, during a press conference in the Region IV DOC office, followed months of debate between the DOC and lodge concessionaire Don Wallace.

Wallace contends the project will take too long and will have a disastrous effect on his business, plus causing him to lose his full-time employees.

In addition to the year-long closure of the entire lodge, Witte said it will be 18 to 24 months before all facets of the massive renovation project are completed. The lodge is a premier attraction of the 7,200-acre state park, which is visited by many Quad-City Area residents.

First fall meeting set by Six Mile

The Old Six Mile Historical Society will start off its new season with a videotape showing of the fashion show and dinner-dance held last April. The group will meet in Central Christian Church, 2020 Johnson Road, on Sept. 8 at 7:30 p.m.

The Enck family took the pictures of the event and will share them with those who attend.

The group will discuss the Apple Butter Festival to be held on the Museum grounds, 3279 Maryville Road at Stralford Lane, Sept. 21 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It will include making and canning apple butter in an antique kettle; a bake sale of apple pie, etc.; and a tour of the museum.

Preparations for this festival will be held at Alma Beckman's home, 2125 Lynch Ave., Sept. 19 and 20. They will peel apples the first day and cook them the next day.

experience in data processing," said Walsley.

Buehler has been with the district for 18 years, starting as a physical education teacher at Frasier, which at that time was a junior high school.

HE HAS SERVED as an intern principal, an administrative aide, an assistant principal at the former Granite City High School North for eight years and an assistant principal at the combined high school for three years.

Buehler holds a specialist degree from SIUE as well as two administrative certificates and a teaching certificate.

His appointment marks the 10th new principal appointment in the last year out of the 12 schools in District 9.

THE POSITION of Grigsby principal became vacant when the previous principal, principal principal Walsley was named superintendent after the resignation of Max Redmond and then Jim Dumont.

Buehler had applied for the high school principal job as well.

The aldermen approved Ordinance 1104 as a collective bargaining agreement between the City of Madison and Police Benevolent and Protective Association Unit 110 at the Aug. 26 meeting.

One of the articles in the document relating to overtime hours states the officer who is called upon to work overtime or called back to duty at other than his regularly assigned hours has the option to take compensatory time or pay for all such hours at the applicable overtime rate.

Since the police department is short by 10 officers at this time, officers are now working overtime shifts.

Alderman James Hillmer asked when the next test would be given for prospective officers. Chief Charles Bridick said he has received a new state mandated ability test procedure and is in the process of setting up another date for testing.

The date selected will be announced in the newspaper for anyone wishing to participate in the program.

Council approval was granted for a clothing allowance of $300 to both Chief Bridick and Detective Sgt. Paul Bargiel.

GOP dinner-dance set

The Granite City Republican Women's Club held a special meeting Aug. 23 at Jerry's Cafeteria to bring members up-to-date on campaign activities and to plan, prepare and promote additional events.

President Vernice Walter will go to the 21st District Republican conference Sept. 6 at the Collinsville Hilton. Secretary of State Jim Edgar will be the keynote speaker.

State Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis, candidate for state comptroller, will be the Sept. 6 moderator and U.S. Rep. Phil Crane will speak at a fund-raising reception between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. More information is available by calling 876-5748.

The club is helping the Madison County Federation of Republican Women prepare for its annual dinner-dance Sept. 14 at the American Legion Clubhouse, Edwardsville. All members will have tickets for sale.

The date to open local campaign headquarters is still uncertain, the president said.

Elna Hoover, former state director for the American Association of Retired Persons' Tax-Aide Volunteers, answered questions on the proposed federal income tax reform. Irma Taylor, ways and means chairman, conducted a silent auction. Verna Michel said Toni Lynch is back in a nursing home; Lillian Firner was released from the hospital; and Anne Pare is recuperating at home.

District Republican Chairman Delton Groothuis sent greetings to the club, thanking the members for continuing support of the local Republican committee. He asked for recommendations for precinct workers and poll judges; he can be reached at 797-0460.

The next meeting will be Sept. 27 at 11:30 a.m. at Jerry's and guests are always welcome, Walter said.

Impotence: A common problem with a cure

One in every eight men older than 40 is impotent or has complaints in obtaining satisfactory erection. But today, successful treatment is possible in as many as 90 percent of the cases and doctors predict that, though that success rate may not increase dramatically, men and their sexual partners will witness significant strides in this specialty area of medicine.

"Impotence is the inability to obtain penile erection that is sufficient for sexual intercourse," explains urologist Dr. Robert Bahnsen.

Impotence is found in all age groups, the young and the old; in all personality types, the outgoing athlete to the high-powered executive to the mild-mannered mechanic; in all occupations, white collar to blue collar and the self-employed.

Penile erection consists of two components — tumescence, where the blood volume of the penis increases and the organ becomes full of blood but not rigid enough to have sexual intercourse; and rigidity, the state normally following tumescence when the penis does not get larger but the blood volume continues to increase and makes it rigid enough to have successful intercourse.

Impotence results when nerves conducting electrical impulses from the brain to the penis are damaged by disease or injury and cannot signal the body to supply blood to the organ, or when blood flow to the penis is obstructed. In atherosclerosis, (hardening of the arteries), for example, vessels supplying the blood to the penis may be blocked or narrowed and unable to supply enough blood to the organ.

A variety of diseases or conditions can cause impotence, including diabetes mellitus. In fact, nearly 50 percent of all adult male diabetics are impotent or have complaints in obtaining satisfactory erection. Other conditions include previous stroke, alcoholism or excessive alcohol intake, multiple sclerosis or renal or liver disease. In some cases, low levels of the male hormone testosterone result in lowered libido (sexual desire) and complaints of impotence.

Medications, too, may cause problems with sexual function. Antidepressants, as well as many of the blood pressure medications and a variety of tranquilizers, can desensitize or block nerve impulses from the brain to the penis or diminish blood flow and result in impotence. The first task for the doctor is to find the underlying problem.

"When a man comes to the office complaining of impotence, we first look at family medical history and conduct a physical examination," said Dr. John Daniels, and endocrinologist/diabetologist. "In most instances, a history and physical will indicate the cause. For example, undiagnosed diabetes is the culprit in nearly 20 percent of the cases."

A psychologic questionnaire can be used to screen patients for underlying emotional problems, such as depression or stress that might be inhibiting brain impulses to the nerves.

Following the initial screening, a home test to scan erection patterns, or the absence of, during sleep cycles may be performed. Men with true impotence have a loss of normal erection during sleep.

In this test, the patient takes home a small computerized recorder — about the size of a small cassette tape player. While the patient sleeps, two leads running from the recorder to two expandable bands encircling the penis record the number of nocturnal erections and measure the degree of tumescence/rigidity.

"The average healthy male experiences four to six erections during a normal sleep cycle," said Daniels. "If men attain normal tumescence and rigidity in their sleep we

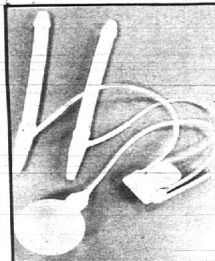

Implants can be effective treatment

Penile prostheses to simulate erection are one viable alternative for some men suffering from disease or other physical conditions which result in impotence.

Developed about 30 years ago and seldom used today, rigid implants consist of two plastic rods that are surgically implanted in the corpus cavernosum, the tube-like passages within the penis that normally fill with blood during erection. Though effective and safe, most men prefer the less-awkward and more comfortable implants that offer alternatives to permanent erection.

The semi-rigid implants also are surgically implanted in the penis but are made of braided silver wire wrapped around a malleable coil and encased in silicone. While rigid enough to maintain erection during intercourse, their flexibility also allows the penis to be tucked into a non-erect position.

The third alternative is the inflatable implant which consists of two balloon-like sacs connected to a reservoir filled with saline and contrast dye which is surgically implanted in the abdominal cavity and connected to a small pump placed in the scrotum.

Squeezing the pump forces the saline from the reservoir into the sacs, which expand to produce penile erection. After intercourse, a release valve allows the fluid to reenter the reservoir and the penis returns to a relaxed state.

"While giving the most natural simulation of penile erection and relaxation, the inflatable device is much more complicated than the rigid or semi-rigid implants and has a higher percentage of complications," said urologist Dr. Robert Bahnsen.

The contrast dye is added to the saline to allow surgeons to make checks through conventional x-ray to assure the device is functioning properly and to detect leakage if the implant malfunctions.

"If this occurs, a second surgical procedure is required to remove and replace the prosthesis," said Bahnsen.

Penile implant surgery is performed under general, spinal, epidural or local anesthesia, takes about one to two hours and requires a hospitalization of two to three days. Like other urologic procedures, penile implant surgery is usually covered by health insurance.

know the cause is psychological and not physical."

Today, almost 90 percent of men suffering from impotence can be successfully treated and lead sexually normal lives. Emotional factors can be addressed in psychotherapy sessions. Administration of testosterone can simply correct inadequate levels of hormone.

For other conditions, a vasodilator or smooth muscle relaxant can be injected directly in the base of the penis by a urologist in the office or by the patient at home immediately before sexual intercourse. By expanding the localized vessels or by releasing muscular restriction of neighboring vessels, adequate amounts of blood can flow into the penis so that rigidity is achieved and maintained for approximately 30 to 90 minutes.

Surgical treatment involves the implantation of penile prostheses (see "Penile Implants" below).

While treatment for impotence is far from ideal, Dr. Bahnsen points out that this specialty area of medicine is already undergoing significant change that translates into better care for the patient. "More and more physicians are being trained in medical school to think about sexual function as part of good health. Often today during routine physicals if the patient doesn't initiate discussion of any sexual problems, the doctor will."

And the next 10 years should bring even more advances in preventing and treating impotence — new developments in surgical procedures for people with specific vascular problems amenable to surgical therapy, and new and better drugs that will decrease the occurrence of impotence as a medication side effect.

Social factors creating more female alcoholics, according to study

Once considered a male problem, alcohol abuse is now increasing rapidly in the female population. According to recent estimates, 4 to 5 percent of the female population in the St. Louis area has a drinking problem, compared to less than 2 percent a decade ago.

Worse, researchers are finding that drinking problems may have a greater impact on a woman than on her male counterpart.

"For women, alcoholism usually means divorce, job loss, and if they have children, one way to lose custody. It's very tough for them," says Theodore Reich, M.D., psychiatrist-in-chief at Jewish Hospital at the Washington University Medical Center.

"They don't have as many resources as men, and because there is still more of a stigma against women alcoholics, they don't receive the same kind of family support."

Dr. Reich and his associate, Robert Cloninger, M.D., Jewish Hospital, psychiatrist, have worked on family research studies on alcoholism. Until recently, research has indicated that women developed drinking problems at later ages than men, usually in their 40s.

In the last decade, however, alcoholism has been showing up increasingly in women in their 20s and 30s.

They are also finding that women are more at risk than men of developing medical complications such as cirrhosis of the liver, and that women are more likely to suffer severe depression with alcoholism.

According to Dr. Cloninger, the rising incidence of alcoholism in women can probably be attributed to social factors.

"The increase in the numbers of women drinking has been of such magnitude and speed, that we think it has been a result of changing social attitudes," he says.

Today, women are coping with more responsibility and occupational stresses. At the same time, there are no longer any taboos about women drinking in social situations. Both factors have increased their risk of becoming alcohol abusers."

Dr. Reich emphasizes that even in families in which the male is an alcohol abuser, women are affected. "In the female alcoholic population, 40 percent of husbands are alcohol abusers," he notes. "But in the male alcoholic population, only 9 percent are married to women who drink."

The problem becomes more critical considering the volatile connection of alcohol to domestic violence. According to a 1984 task force report by the Missouri attorney general's office, alcohol abuse among women is a growing problem and one of the largest precipitating causes is abuse.

Dr. Reich says it is not unusual for a wife to start drinking with her alcoholic and/or abusive husband. Some experts think that abused women turn to alcohol as a way of numbing the constant physical and emotional pain in their lives.

Although women — and men — will usually deny the issue, alcohol abuse can be treated successfully through abstinence and education-oriented treatment programs, says Dr. Reich.

"Alcohol addiction is a powerful force," he said. "Individuals who have the disease need to resist it every day. Because of the strong denial of their problem, alcoholism is the kind of problem that needs intervention, often by another family member."

Football exercise is called success

By Gregg Ochoa

Executive Sports Editor
GRANITE CITY The Black team beat the White squad in a full contact scrimmage Friday night at Memorial Stadium.

The exercise was one of the final tuneups for Granite City prior to the season opener next Friday against Cahokia.

"We needed to work on technique," said head coach Ron Yates. "That's why we had this."

The first-string squad was divided up and the two teams played under game-like conditions for three full quarters.

In the final quarter, the first-string offense ran several series of downs against a defense and then the first-string defense was assembled to stop an offensive unit selected by the coaches.

Some highlights:
• Quarterback Tim Hogan ran for a touchdown and looked good throwing the ball.

• Senior receiver Eric Ryterski caught several passes, including one for a touchdown.

• Kory Burton and Jim Parker did the placekicking for their respective squads. Both are in a battle for a starting assignment. In all, Yates said he was happy with the scrimmage.

"I was pleased with the hitting," the coach said. "Some of the boys played really hard. Mentally, they seemed very alert."

A couple of people probably won a starting assignment based on their play (tonight)."

On the negative side, both offensive units were whistled for delay of game penalties, a total of five in the first half alone.

At times it was a little bit confusing, but it wasn't anything too serious," Yates said. "Some of it was to be expected since we only had a day to put this all together."

Overall, the scrimmage was a success. Individually, there was some intense hitting, which brought the crowd to life.

The Warrior coaching staff remained on the field during the four quarters of play to offer instruction and encouragement.

In all, 52 players dressed for the scrimmage.

Kickoff for the game against Cahokia will be at 7:30 p.m. The Warriors have won the last two meetings against the Comanches, coming from behind each time.

"I really don't know too much about Cahokia," said Yates. "But they usually have several guys who have a lot of speed."

SIU cagers must forfeit 8 games

By Gary King

Correspondent

EDWARDSVILLE — Trouble, and the NCAA Committee of Infractions, have found former SIUE basketball player Anthony Webster once again.

In a statement issued by athletic director Dr. Lynn Lashbrook Friday, it was announced the Cougars will be forced to forfeit their last eight victories of the 1985-86 basketball season because Webster had played ineligibly during the latter part of the season.

According to Lashbrook, the violation of an NCAA by-law, which says student-athletes must carry at least 12 credit hours in order to be eligible for inter-collegiate competition, occurred when Webster withdrew from a class last Feb. 7, thus dropping him below the minimum standards required by the university.

"Although we were completely unaware of it at the time, Anthony Webster had dropped a course that made him ineligible to play for us from that point on," said Lashbrook. "We here in the athletic department, as well as the university officials, did not become aware that anything was wrong until Apr. 1, when the grade cards for the winter quarter were released."

"When we found out what had happened, we went immediately to (SIUE) President Earl Lazer-son and informed him. From there, we began to compile our facts, and I'd say we sent everything into the NCAA within a week."

Since the infraction was reported by the university prior to an NCAA investigation, Webster's playing ineligibly was classified as a "secondary violation," meaning it will not affect the SIUE athletic program in any way during the upcoming season.

The Cougars will, however, be forced to surrender victories they picked up against Northeast Missouri State University, Lindenwood College, Northwest Missouri State University, the Universities of Missouri at St. Louis and Rolla, Southern Indiana University, St. Joseph College and Lewis College. The forfeits drop the Cougars' official record for last season from 23-7 to 15-15.

In July, the NCAA levied a one-year ban on Webster at Bradley University, where Webster played for three seasons prior to transferring to SIUE last fall. It was alleged that Webster had become part of a scandal involving recruiting violations when he had been offered cars and money in exchange for attending the Division I university.

When reached at his Kansas City home last month, Webster declined to comment on the matter.

According to SIUE head basketball coach Larry Graham, the former All-State center for Cairo High School was admitted to the university on academic probation.

"When Anthony came here, he had a 1.9 grade-point average on Bradley's 4.0 scale," Graham said. "Since we go on the 5.0 scale, that made his accumulative GPA 2.9. But we require all of our athletes to maintain at least a 3.0 average, so Anthony was admitted on academic probation."

"The funny thing was, he had completed the necessary amount of coursework and he had a 3.2 accumulative GPA when he dropped out of the class that made him ineligible."

Graham also said neither he nor Lashbrook were aware of the nature of Webster's problems at Bradley until after he had transferred to SIUE.
